Exploring The Americas (Chester The Crab's Comics With Content Series)

Synopsis

See the clash of cultures as white Europeans set foot in the North American woods that are home to the First Americans. Who wins the fight for Florida? Who claims the Mississippi River - and then loses it? And why are the English so happy to find fish? Meet Columbus, Cabot, Cartier, LaSalle, Champlain, deLeon, deSoto and Menendez in this funny, colorful graphic novel that will excite reluctant readers and help homeschooling parents!

As a teacher of language arts and interdisciplinary studies, I recommend Bentley Boyd's work to kids 10 and up. He developed a strong graphic sense over his years as a long-time political and educational cartoonist (full disclosure: I have known Bentley for many years, and saw early versions of many of the narratives that ended up in the Chester the Crab series). This makes his work visually stimulating for readers of all ages. This series started as an educational tool aligned with Virginia's content-focused "Standards of Learning". The current educational environment promotes a focus on real content; a school that wants its students to learn plenty of real content could do no better than to connect with this author/artist's work. Each page is a stand-alone piece of history that addresses a clear content objective, and each book tells a handful of stories that put years of history in context. The color is great, the layout engaging, and the subtle references add layers of information and humor. One note: even though this is a series for students, Bentley is unafraid to address sensitive issues and unwilling to gloss over the unpleasant aspects of history. "Heroic figures" are not larger-than-life, and their flaws are not airbrushed away. This is history and art from someone who loves and respects both.

Can't say enough about how much my daughter and I enjoy this Chester series title. Well written, beautiful artwork.....absolutely wonderful. Thanks, Chester the Crab! Making history (even more) fun!

My son is 8 and an avid reader. He'll read novels, biographies, and he LOVES Archie comics. The fact that this series covers all of them makes it a home run for our house. I think it would also be an excellent introduction for kids who might not have a great interest in reading. Everyone loves comics, right? Let them read these and they'll be entertained while actually learning something about early American history at the same time.

My children (7 and 9) love to read Chester Comix! It has definitely been a great way to introduce history to them.
